Facts Don't Give Much Credence to
'Recession' Talk

Every time I hear "recession" talk I think about the vagaries of the weather.

We had little or no rain all last fall, and all through the winter; and then with the prospect of a third dry year in a row we began to get rain in May. And within a week some folks were crying about the rain, too.

As the postwar period develops we know a certain amount of production and price adjustment is probable for industry and commerce, and about the only thing government can do to help matters is to make the change as gradual as possible. As another local man once told me: "Government sets up these war booms by arbitrary action — the least it can do is to let things down gradually enough to give business men time to make personal adjustments." And that's entirely correct.

But anyone who went through the 1929-33 depression has a vast impatience with the easily-startled gentry who cry "recession" simply because this year's business may not be up to 1933's or 1932's. By and large, except for certain segments such as automobiles and textiles, American business continues traveling today at a level close to the all-time peak. When you say "recession," therefore, smile. A lot of us saw business dive 50 per cent or more in the early 1930's.

Not that such a thing is likely to happen again soon, if ever. Business might hit a long-time slide, but there are factors in present-day America to prevent even that. . . . factors which weren't here in the depression 1930's.

About a week ago I wrote a piece for this column pointing out that despite "recession" talk all the American resorts are reporting increased reservations for tourists this coming summer—which would seem to give the lie to hard-times talk. Since publishing that piece I find in the Wall Street Journal for May 19 a factual survey of American tourist reservations abroad for this summer — and it shows that they are already 5 per cent or more ahead of last year's all-time record.

As an index to the general economic health of our country this is proof positive some of our yellow citizens are hollerin' before they are hurt. Prosperity is worth working for, even today — and the talkers may be suspected of either not being workers or, still more tragic, being people willing to work but having no useful skill whatsoever. For this latter group "recession" is a chronic condition.

What's behind the great vacation-travel boom both at home and abroad? The Wall Street Journal's answer tells us simultaneously some of the factors present in America today which weren't here during the 1930 depression. Says the financial paper:

"Harry A. Hill, head of American Express' Paris office, cites these factors: An increase in transport facilities, particularly the cheap, fast kind of tourist air services; a rising U. S. population with a growing per capita income and, with lengthened paid vacations, more time to spend it; an increase in the number of retired people who can afford to spend their time abroad; and an increase in student and business-connected tours."

Conspiracy Charged to Three Persons

BOSTON (AP) — Three men and three women faced Superior Court action today on charges of conspiring to overthrow by force or violence the government of Massachusetts or the United States.

All were arrested last night after a Suffolk County grand jury indicted seven secret indictments. Still being sought is Daniel Boone Schirmer, 39, once an avowed member of the Communist party of Massachusetts.

Otis Arthur Hood, 54, four times Communist party candidate for governor and self-admitted titular head of the party in Massachusetts for many years, was arrested in his Boston home.

Ann Burlak Timponson, 43, also of Boston, known as the "Red Flame" when she led demonstrating striking textile workers in the early days of the 30s, was arrested after a campaign stunt by Dist. Atty. Garrett H. Byrne who believes the way to get elected is to prosecute Reds.

The two other women seized and taken to the Suffolk County jail are Mrs. Barbara Bennett Rosenkrantz, 31, of Springfield and Mrs. Edith Abner, 33, of Boston.

Also arrested were Franklin P. Collier Jr., 48, of Melrose, head of the party's bookstore on Boston's Beach Street for many years, and Herbert J. Zimmerman, 29, who authorities said was education director of the Communist party in the Greater Boston area.

Reds Who Foul Up Are Really Washer Up

By H. D. QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP) — Wilson the Soviet Russian bosses decide to wash a man right of their hair; they keep right on washing until he's out of history's hair too. They wipe him off the books.

Lawrence P. Beria's full-page picture in the major Russian reference work "The Great Soviet Encyclopedia" is being replaced by a page of scenes of the Bering Sea Area—two dead whales, a live whale, a walrus, some walrus on a chunk of ice, two grim sealiffs, and some vacant tundra.

The 1,500 word biography of Beria also is being wiped out of the encyclopedia, together with a squib about the small town of Beria in Armenia. The town, founded in 1932, was named for the former Soviet deputy premier.

Not telling what it's now being called. Beria himself was wiped out by a firing squad two days before last Christmas. A supreme court commission had convicted the former No. 2 man in the Soviet Union of high treason in trying to seize power and re-establish a capitalistic state.

The biography, published in 1950 in volume 5 of the monumental encyclopedia, starts out: "Beria, Lavrenti Pavlovich, born March 29, 1899, one of the most prominent leaders of the Communist party and of the Soviet state—a true disciple and closest fellow-fighter of Stalin."

It runs on for three columns of type in a factual account of the achievements and honors won by the former interior minister and chief of secret police. A book he wrote in 1935 is called a valuable contribution to the scholarly history of the Bolshevik movement.

The New York Public Library disclosed today that the latest Soviet reappraisal of history came to it in the mail in the form of a new set of pages 21 through 24 to be inserted in volume 5. With the new sheets came this note to subscribers to the Encyclopedia:

"The state scientific publishing house recommends eliminating from volume 5 of the great Soviet encyclopedia of pages 21, 22, 23, and 24, as well as the portrait pasted in between pages 22 and 23. Instead of these, we are sending pages with new text."

"With scissors or a razor, one should cut out the above-mentioned pages, leaving a margin, to which the new leaves should be pasted."

In the four new pages the Beria picture layout replaces the bulk of the Beria biography (the Beria picture having been an extra leaf with no type of back). But some more type was needed to fill out space formerly taken by Beria type. So, the publishers put in 30 lines on Friedrich Wilhelm Bergholz—a German, but a man who fits in just right alphabetically.

Bergholz, an 18 century German courtier who kept a diary about his travels in Russia, rated 12 lines in a previous edition of this same encyclopedia, published in the mid-1920's.

MOTHERS CAN
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Franklin Kaiser, 11-year-old fifth-grader who edits and publishes his own community newspaper, summed up the vacation story in his latest edition this way:

"School's out June 4. Kids can't wait. Teachers can't wait but the mothers can't."

Committee for Liberal Social Security System

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's program for a bigger and more liberal social security system was almost ready today for House consideration.

Members of the House Ways and Means Committee predicted their group would approve the legislation next week after a couple of finishing touches. The committee has been taking up the Eisenhower program on an item-by-item basis.

Late yesterday, the committee approved all of the President's requests for higher benefits, and in a few cases added some of its own.

It also approved over the opposition of most committee Republicans the President's plan to raise from $3,600 to $4,200 the maximum annual income on which benefits are based and taxes are levied.

That left only two substantial items still to be acted upon: a proposal to extend coverage to farm laborers, and a plan to give disabled workers full benefits.

The committee already had accepted Eisenhower's request to extend social security coverage to doctors, lawyers and other professionals, to farm operators, ministers, state and local government employees and various smaller groups.

If the bill becomes law, the system, now covering some 70 million workers and paying benefits to 6 million persons, would blanket almost the entire working force of the nation.

The social security system provides monthly payments to workers and their families on retirement or to their survivors. Both workers and their employers pay special taxes into a trust fund from which benefits are paid.

McCarthy to Continue His Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration seemed headed today for continued conflict with Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) despite cautions from some Republican quarters against broadening the senator's dispute with top Army officials.

Foreign Aid Administrator Harold E. Stassen loosed a fresh attack on McCarthy yesterday with an assertion that "we need less headline hunters and more Eisenhower backers for the good of America."

With what some lawmakers surmised was White House assent, Stassen asserted McCarthy had made a "legion of false statements" in a Senate speech Wednesday in which the Wisconsin senator said it was "criminal folly" to continue to give financial aid to allies who ship goods to Red China. Stassen wouldn't say if the issue was discussed in his meeting with President Eisenhower yesterday.

Stassen used strong terms at a news conference in spite of what an influential Republican senator said was bad advice to the White House: Let McCarthy's row with Secretary of the Army Stevens run its course without unnecessarily fanning further the flame of party disunity.

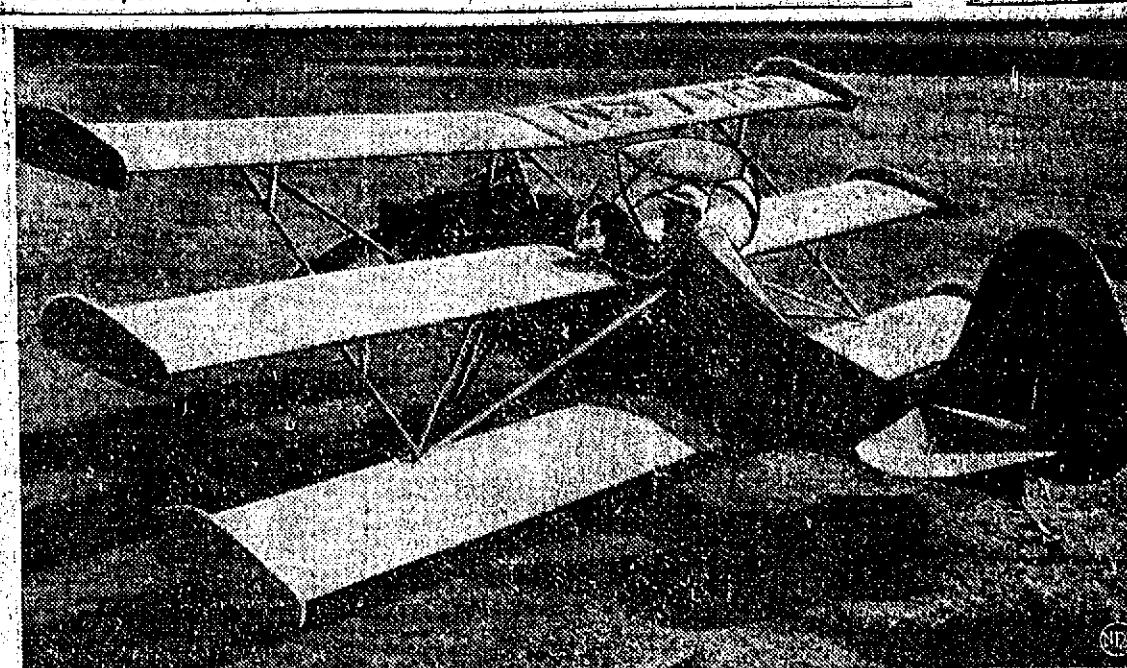

The GOP senator, regarded as one of Eisenhower's staunchest supporters, declined use of his name but told an interviewer of his counsel to White House officials.

"I just reminded them," he said, "that McCarthy is going to be a senator for three and a half years more and there will be a lot of occasions around here when we may need Republican votes."

Stassen, whose agency faces going into Congress on its 3½ billion dollar new foreign aid request, made clear yesterday he does not expect to find McCarthy among those voting "aye."

McCarthy and Eisenhower are at odds over a presidential order cutting off testimony about a high-level administration conference at which the Army's dealings with McCarthy and his aides were discussed. Eisenhower issued his ban on grounds the Constitution requires separation of the executive and legislative branches of government, and he said the order was aimed at keeping the televised Senate investigation of the dispute "on its rails," not at hindering it. Stevens then said charges against McCarthy came from the Army and not higher up.

McCarthy, who has voiced the opinion that Eisenhower was acting without full knowledge of the situation, criticized the order again last night at a Chicago plane stop on his way to Wisconsin. He termed it "peculiar" because Eisenhower "wants the public to have all the facts except those on the one meeting."

FLYING "FLEA"—A triplane called the "Flea" may soon be sold in "build-it-yourself" kits for less than $1000. George Frisbee, its inventor, demonstrates the plane in Milwaukee, Wis. It still has to pass several CAA tests before he'll be able to market the Flea. The plane is 15' 11" long, has a 20-foot wing span and reportedly travels about 100 miles per hour.

White Collar Class Is Having Plenty of Trouble With Vending Machines in the Locker Room

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a new kind of class warfare going on in America today.

It is a war between the white collar class and the coin vending machines in the office locker rooms where millions of white collar workers now consume the lunches they carry to work.

In some offices the locker rooms resemble supermarkets, crowded with automatic dispensing gadgets that peddle everything from mystery novels to stockings.

The locker room in my firm, however, is making no attempt to run the A & P out of business. We have only 7 of these coin-operated mechanical salesmen, which yield 2 kinds of milk, several flavors of ice cream, brands of cigarettes, 4 varieties of soft drinks, and about 20 kinds of candy bars.

But even these seven machines have turned our placid locker room into an exciting battleground where men and metal monsters grapple in mortal combat.

I have practically given up going to the theater or watching television. When I want to study human nature in the raw, I go to the locker room, where I am sure I can find more soul-searing drama than in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

More suspense than in "Dragnet," more comedy than a Broadway musical offering.

Who will win—man or machine? This is the crucial issue every time an employee approaches one of the machines with a coin. Nine out of 10 times there is a happy ending. The machine hesitates, grumbles, then reluctantly coughs up the desired merchandise.

The 10th time—maybe the machine doesn't like the feel of the coin or the color of the necktie the employee is wearing—nothing happens. Then anything can happen—from a renewal of the siege of Vicksburg to another Battle of the Bulge.

Usually the engagement ends after a flurry of wild blows and kicks, a series of high-pitched human yells and low stubborn mechanical growls with the employee nursing bruised fists and sore toes—and the machine sneering at the natural superiority it feels toward any white collar worker.

Since the profits from our machines go into an office welfare fund, we have an umpire who settles most of these disputes by returning the lost coin—a truce that really appeases neither the man nor the machine involved.

But in another office locker room I know of—I collect these tidbits of machine age folklore—a really interesting dispute arose. An employee claimed he pushed down the button of the vending machine for a bar of plain chocolate. But he asserts he bot instead a chocolate almond bar, which he dees, and after chewing up the first bite he dees half a worm waving in broad daylight.

This man demands he wants more than his nickel back. He wants to sue the machine. The machine on the other hand claims he man is a known liar and a fraud, and insists it will fight the case clear up to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary. The third party in the dispute he form is in no condition to testify for either side.

It is clear that more and more of these difficult issues will arise in time. In a word where there is already too much ill will. The Nobel Peace Prize certainly ought to go to the first man who can find a way to curb the growing hostility between the white collar class and the locker room automatic vending machines.

Saboteurs Blast Rail Line In Guatemala

GUATEMALA (AP) — Guatemala last night blasted saboteurs who blew up a rail line in an attempt to stop a munitions train. The announcement came as the government heatedly charged the United States with spreading alarmist reports about arms arriving from Iron Curtain countries.

Interior Minister Augusto Guzmán said the explosion occurred Wednesday, killing a civilian and a soldier and wounding three other soldiers.

The saboteurs fought a gun battle with federal troops, he said, and then fled into the hills near the Honduran border. The government is moving troops to the area, and is working on the shipment of arms from the United States to the Soviet Union.

South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Tung-tai planned to visit before the Korean peninsula, but a proposal designed to unite the devastated peninsula, but it appeared destined for a quick communist rebuttal.

Senate House Atomic Energy Committee is designed to investigate atomic power field. It also provides authority for expanding more weapons and civilian uses of information with foreign nations.

Reported discontent within ranks was underlined last night with the announcement by G. Cokerley that he intended to leave his post as the assistant director of classification at the end of the summer.

In this job, Cokerley, who may or may not be a communist, was reported to be a communist. Cokerley declined to comment on his reasons for quitting, but was reported to be a communist.

Family Wants Son to Return Home

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The family of Pvt. James Davis, who was killed in action, is asking the government to return his body to the family.

The Army yesterday acknowledged officially that Davis had been killed in action. Davis had been missing since the 22-year-old Davis had been behind the Iron Curtain.

"Jimmy was a real American boy," said Davis' father, James Davis Sr., a paperhanger and painter. "I'm sure this was his own will."

Private Schine Is Kentucky Colonel

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — David Schine, often called "best known private in the Army," actually is a Kentucky colonel, it was learned today.

And, such the key figure in the McCarthy Army row, he held that rank for more than a year.

Schine was commissioned aide-de-camp, with the grade of colonel on the staff of Acting Gov. James B. Ray, who was killed in action.

The commission was given in response to a letter from O. C. Schine, a Kentucky colonel, who was killed in action.

Under the law authorizing the Air Force to set up an academy at West Point, Md., the Air Force must accept the commission's recommendation. It is unanimous.

If the commission disapproves, it would be required to pick the site from among the top three recommended.

Judge Said Man
Had Been Punished

NAPLES, Italy (AP) Walking to work with three companions, Giacomo Penarolo found a 100-lire note (15 cents) in the street. "We will buy a lottery ticket with it," said Giacomo. His friends agreed they decided on a number and left it up to Penarolo to buy the ticket. Came the day of the lottery drawing. The number the four picked won 450,000 lire (more than $700) — a fortune for a Neapolitan workman.

The court heard the sad ending after Penarolo's three companions charged him with pocketing the prize. Penarolo dolefully told the court he had decided not to push his luck any further. He never bought the winning lottery ticket. "The fates have punished you enough," the judge said. "Case dismissed."

Keyserling Sees
No Depression

NEW YORK (AP) Leon H. Keyserling, who served as to peconom ic advisor to former President Truman, sees no depression in America but urges the present administration to take steps to curb unemployment.

Addressing a meeting for businessmen yesterday sponsored by Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), Keyserling said: "I have not thought from the beginning that we were going to have a depression, and I don't think so now. I disagree with those who have so blithely shouted the cry of pending depression. This is irresponsible in these times."

Keyserling added that unless the Eisenhower administration quickly adopts a "vigorous policy of reactivating the economy," the nation will have a "true level of unemployment of 7 1/2 million by the first quarter next year."

The speeding fine was $32. The red light question will be decided later.

DOROTHY DIX

His Trumped-Up Excuses

Dear Miss Dix: Lennie and I have been married five years and have two children. Up to a few months ago he was a good husband, never complained about the house. Suddenly he announced that because of my poor house keeping he did not love me any longer. I'm ready to admit I'm not a world beater on housekeeping, but I certainly do an average, or slightly better than average job. The children are properly cared for and well behaved. I am a very good cook, as Lennie himself readily admits, and the house is kept clean and reasonably tidy.

My weaknesses are that I don't sew, can't run up slips or covers or draperies, and am not handy with a paint brush. With the excuse that I don't keep the home as he wishes he has been going out with another woman, whom I shall call Sally. When I object, he adds jealousy to his other accusations and tells me I'm childish. Now, how far are his complaints justified, and should I accept his dates with Sally cheerfully and submissively?

MONA

Answer: Lennie is a weak character. Not only does he lack the decency to resist temptation, but he hasn't even the moral stamina to accept responsibility for his reprehensible conduct. Trampling on reasons why you are to blame for his actions, he transfers blithely the guilt from his shoulder to yours. He works on the theory that if he bellows hard enough no one will notice his own shortcomings.

He Lives Like a Bachelor As a married man, he has absolutely no right to be dating another woman, and if Sally had a conscience she wouldn't go out with him. Perhaps you aren't a perfect housekeeper — very few women are — but that definitely doesn't give him the privilege of acting like a bachelor. Calling attention to your minor feelings as a housewife

Rhee's Party Wins
Assembly Vote

SEOUL, (AP) — President Syngman Rhee's Liberal party today clinched control of the South Korean National Assembly by winning 109 of 203 seats in the one house legislature.

Election officials said returns from all districts showed that independent candidates won in 74 districts, Democratic nationalists in 15 Korean Nationalist's in 3 and the Korean Nationalist Society in 2.

The victory was at least partially a personal one for Rhee. His party did not control the last Assembly and he appealed to the people for a working majority in the next house.

Apparently the estimated eight million voters—about 90 per cent of the electorate—gave him what he asked. And control of the Assembly could lead to an extended term as president for Rhee. Only the Assembly can ending his term, a constitutional clause ending his term in 1956.

Answer: It isn't wise to make things too easy for men; after all, they should do the calling, the visiting, the asking. You've pre-empted all these privileges, yet cavil because suddenly it dawns on you that you've been taken too much for granted. Car or no car, stop pursuing the man, and make him do the courting for a change. If he won't there's nothing you can do but find another beau.
